COMMUNITY FORUM FORMALLY OPENED

Miss Wilson's Resolution
Starts Discussion of Relations With U. S.

CLASHES WITH MR. PAGE
ON PAY FOR CIVIC WORKERS

North Carolina Representative
Thinks D. C. Patriotism Most Concerned With Getting Money.

Washington's first community forum started yesterday and started some things. Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President, the patroness of the community organizations at the Grover Cleveland School building, and the honor guest of the occasion, introduced a resolution that started a lively discussion of the relations of the people of the Capital city toward the government. Others participating in the discussion were Oliver P. Newman, president of the board of Commissioners of the District; Henry P. Blair, president of the board of education; Representative Robert N. Page of North Carolina, chairman of the subcommittee on Appropriations, and Daniel A. Edwards, president of the Lincoln Park Citizens' Association. The real clash of opinion, however, was between Miss Wilson and Representative Page, and Miss Wilson held her ground bravely against the representative.

The first meeting of the forum was held in the assembly hall of the Grover Cleveland School, 8th and T streets northwest, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Convincing evidence of the interest of Washington residents in the forum use of public schoolhouses was given by the size of the crowd of both men and women who braved the storm to attend. This fact was commented upon by all of the speakers named above.

Miss Wilson's Resolution.
The resolution offered by Miss Wilson, which started the forum with the real spirit of "opportunity for fair presentation" and free discussion of public questions, and which was passed unanimously, was to the effect that as members of Congress are allowed salaries for their services, so the people who are performing such public service as is Miss Frances S. Fairley, the principal of the Grover Cleveland School, who has been largely instrumental in the organization of the forum and is acting as its secretary, should be allowed salaries for their services.

Representative Page, who took issue with Miss Wilson's views, while endorsing the forum idea and expressing the hope that it would spread to all school buildings in the District, seemed to think that the payment of the people of the forum was more concerned with getting money from the United States Treasury than it should be.

After a brief introduction by A. J. Driscoll, president of the Midcity Citizens' Association, Miss Frances Fairley, principal of the Grover Cleveland School, and secretary of the forum, gave an account of its formation.

Advocates Proper Remuneration.
Miss Fairley had no sooner resumed her seat than Miss Wilson asked permission to speak and introduced a resolution intended to provide a definite and systematic way that the school principals who render or undertake such public service as that which Miss Fairley is performing should be properly remunerated for this service out of public funds.

"Every public schoolhouse is to be the capitol of its neighborhood," said Miss Wilson in urging the vital importance of this position. "If the citizens are to assemble in these buildings, as now their representatives assemble in the buildings that the citizens provide for them, then the citizens must, as a matter of course, have the responsible service of a clerk or secretary in each district, just as every body of their representatives has such service. Surely Congress will see the need of this. They could not get along at all in businesslike fashion without some body definitely engaged as clerk to take care of their detail work. We must have somebody responsible in each community, and Congress cannot and we ought not, to expect the public school principals to do this work without being relieved of some of their time-consuming and unimportant present burdens which should be handled by subordinates, and without official recognition and proper compensation for their service as community secretaries."

"Genuine Forum of Democracy."
"This event is historic," said Commissioner Newman, in opening his address. "Whether we appreciate it or not, the future will recognize that the inauguration of this first genuine forum of democracy in the nation's capital is an occurrence of very vital and fundamental significance. The freedom of thought and speech that will prevail here is to be the one and the same in government by all the people, but there is nothing finer in the beginning than the fact that you have chosen Sunday afternoon as the meeting time. Whatever one's views upon religious questions may be, every American will agree that there is no better way of rendering service to both God and man than by gathering in this place dedicated to the common welfare to devote the common thought to the common interest.

Speaking of the Sunday use of the building, President Blair of the board of education said that the board had approved this use for the open meeting, but he pointed out that arrangements would have to be made regarding such details as heating before a formal decision could be taken on this matter. He said that Miss Wilson's position upon the necessity of a paid secretary was sound, but he emphasized the fact that adjustments in the work of principals must be made in order to free them for this service.

"Washington is more than local, and the significance of such an event as this is to be felt in the whole nation," said Representative Page. "There seems a disposition here to make the government pay the cost of this service. In one district where there are 700 white persons in the school district and 240 children at the school, the school principal has been in operation for three years, and in that time has paid his own expenses and contributed $2,000 to the betterment and upkeep of the school itself."

"Forum Meets Real Need."
D. A. Edwards declared that the community forum meets a real need of the people of Washington. In the discussion from the floor, which followed the formal addresses, Dr. K. A. Flanagan, Leo Schoenthal, E. J. Ward of the bureau of education and others spoke. Miss Wilson closing the discussion by saying: "We must remember that what we are organizing is a forum of the citizens of the United States. We assemble in these buildings not only to confer upon local matters, but upon the great affairs of this nation's life and welfare, for which, at last, the people are responsible. As American citizens we are responsible for the public affairs of this nation. As citizens we are responsible for the public affairs of this nation. As citizens we are responsible for the public affairs of this nation."

Her resolution was unanimously adopted. This was followed by a rising vote of appreciation of the devotion that Miss Wilson is showing to the public welfare. Upon motion of George McLeod the assembly voted to formally request the board of education to permit the use of the building on such Sunday afternoons as may be arranged with the principal of the building.

A business meeting of the citizens for consideration of the forum constitution and selection of permanent officers will be held at the Grover Cleveland School Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

COMMISSIONERS DISAPPROVE. Say Proposed Criminal Study Should Be Nation-Wide.

That the investigation proposed should be extended to the entire nation rather than confined to the District is the conclusion reached by the District Commissioners regarding Senate bill 3485, providing for the establishment of a laboratory in the District for the study of the criminal, pauper and defective classes.

"It is the opinion of the Commissioners," they say in an adverse report to Congress on the bill, "that the measure would not be a basis for any valuable conclusions."

Coast Freight Rates Advance.
Vessels employed in the freighting of lumber and other cargoes between Chesapeake bay and tributary ports are now being benefited by the general advance in freight rates along the coast. Many barges that were engaged in carrying lumber, coal and other commodities between Norfolk, Baltimore, this city and other points on Chesapeake bay and its tributaries are employed in trade on the coast and the vessels left in the bay trade are now being paid from $3 to $2.5 a thousand feet of lumber and there has been an advance in all bay freight. This is about a dollar advance over the rates prevailing a few weeks ago. The coming boating season promises to be one of the best that vessel owners and masters have seen in many years. It is probable that vessels that have been earning little or nothing for several years past will be in the coming year be able to pay handsome dividends.

BAZAAR TO FEATURE MANY CURIOSITIES

Affair for Relief of Widows and Orphans of Central Powers to Be Full of Novelties.

Curiosties will be features of the charity bazaar which will be opened this evening, with special ceremonies, at Odd Fellows' Hall, for the relief of the widows and orphans of the central European powers. Perhaps the biggest feature will be the reproduction of the German trenches of the present war, knickerbockers of the District of Columbia, composed of veterans who have served in the German army in times past, but are now American citizens. They will be clad in the uniforms of famous corps of the German army and will man a reproduction, in miniature and in wood, of the famous forty-two-centimeter gun, which has wrought such deadly havoc in the war in Europe.

There will also be a booth upon which will be displayed all sorts of articles made by military prisoners of Germany and Austrian-Hungary who are at present confined in military camps, and which will be arranged by the German and Austrian embassies here and secured and distributed here and elsewhere throughout the country for fairs and bazaars given for the relief of the orphans and widows' fund.

Another unusual feature will be the Bulgarian coffee room, in charge of Mrs. Stephan Panaretov, wife of the Bulgarian minister to the United States, and in connection with it Turkish smoking rooms, supplied with cigarettes and cigars, established under the direction of Mrs. Abdul Hak Hussein Bey, wife of the Turkish charge d'affaires, who will have personal charge of the display.

Twenty booths in all of various design and decoration will display many unfamiliar articles donated to the cause, and in charge of and attendant upon them will be scores of young women arrayed in various national costumes to contribute to the scenic display.

At the formal opening of the bazaar this evening, it is announced, two addresses will be made by prominent speakers, whose names are withheld, together with musical selections by the big chorus of the Washington Sängerbund.

Program of Other Nights.
Tomorrow evening, a feature will be a drill by twenty-four young girls under the leadership of Miss Pauline Holter; Wednesday evening a series of folk dances, German, Austrian, Hungarian, Turkish and Bulgarian, in national costumes, will be given; Friday evening the drill by Miss Holter and her companions will be repeated, and Saturday evening will be devoted to a general auction of the goods not otherwise disposed of.

Martin Wiegand is secretary of the executive committee in charge of the bazaar and Gustave Bender, secretary of the United German Societies of the District of Columbia is in charge of the general arrangements. Opening ceremonies this evening will begin at 8 o'clock and on all other days the bazaar will be open from 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

So States U. S. Attorney at San Francisco. Discussing Case of Indicted Official.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 14.—Franz Boep, German consul general at this port, who was indicted by the federal grand jury last week on charges of violation of United States neutrality, must appear in court tomorrow to be arraigned, along with members of his official family and others, according to a decision announced today by Acting United States District Attorney M. A. Thomas.

Attorneys for the officials of the German consulate were in conference yesterday with Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Annette Adams, assistant United States district attorney, as to whether or not the consul general could appear by proxy.

The law is the law for all indicted men alike," was the decision of the federal attorneys.

Mrs. Adams headed that a consular representative of a foreign government may not demand any different treatment from that accorded to the humblest citizen.
